Umbrail Pass
Elevation 2,503m

Day One - Morning Umbrail Pass

The Umbrail Pass has an elevation of 2,503m above sea level and is located on the Swiss-Italian border. At this elevation, the road to the summit is currently one of the highest paved roads in the Alps. The climb is spectacular and the road features 35 hairpin turns. In summary, it's moderately difficult but with some great high Alpine scenery.

Stelvio Pass
Elevation 2,757m

Day One - Afternoon Stelvio Pass

Whatever way you look at it, the Stelvio is a spiritual cycling experience like no other. First featuring in the Giro d'Italia in 1953, it's the highest finish of any Grand Tour stage. Bend after bend, jaw dropping scenery and a vast expanse of mountain mystique awaits you. The Stelvio is a true test of physical and mental strength.

Passo di Gavia
Elevation 2,622m

Day Two

Passo di Gavia

Steeped in Italian cycling history, the Passo Gavia is one of the most feared and famous climbs in the Giro d'Italia. First used in 1960, it regularly stirs up its snowy mischief ever since. A unique challenge and the natural beauty of Lago Bianco at the summit will soothe your soul forever. Without question, a truly inspirational mountain.

Mortirolo Pass
Elevation 1,852m

Day Three Mortirolo Pass

Riding the Mortirolo: Cycling's toughest climb!

The Mortirolo name derives from the Italian for 'dead' and its 32 torturous turns certainly make you long for the end. The average grade of this climb is 11% with a maximum of 14.3%.

The Mortirolo ascends from 594 meter at the start, to 1,852 meter at the top, with a total of 1,258 ascending meters.

Garden Pass Day
Elevation 1,854m

Day Four

Passo Gardena/Passo Sella/Passo Pordoi

Although there are 3 climbs today, it is in fact three passes in one. This really is a classic Dolomites day. Lovevelo.co.uk has ranked all three passes in their top five most beautiful climbs in the Dolomites. Possibly one of the most picturesque and rewarding days you will ever experience on a bike.

Passo Falzarego
Elevation 2,105m

Day Five - Morning

Passo Falzarego

The Falzarego Pass is 19km long with an average of just 5.7%. It was made famous by the incredible battle between Fausto Coppi and Gino Bartali in the 1946 Giro. Endless hairpins and stunning scenery bring you all the way to the summit.

Marmolada Pass
Elevation 2,054m

Day Five - Afternoon Marmolada Pass

Watched over by the highest peak in the Dolomites (The Marmolada), the pass is an enchanting journey of mystery and intrigue right from the very beginning. From Caprile in the east, you are faced with just over 14km of climbing at an average gradient of 7.5%. Captivated by its beauty, it is one of the hardest climbs in the region.

Giau Pass
Elevation 2,238m

Day Six Giau Pass

A breathtaking balcony view over the Dolomites is a fitting end to our 10 Icons tour. A snake of hairpin bends (29 to be exact) leading to what is almost unanimously described as "the most beautiful landscape in the Dolomites". When an enchanting view opens up with scattered small wooden huts and the rocky cliffs of the Dolomites as a backdrop, you know you have arrived at the 2,238m of altitude of the Giau Pass.
